

REVELATION

TRUTH

REASON

GOD

MAN

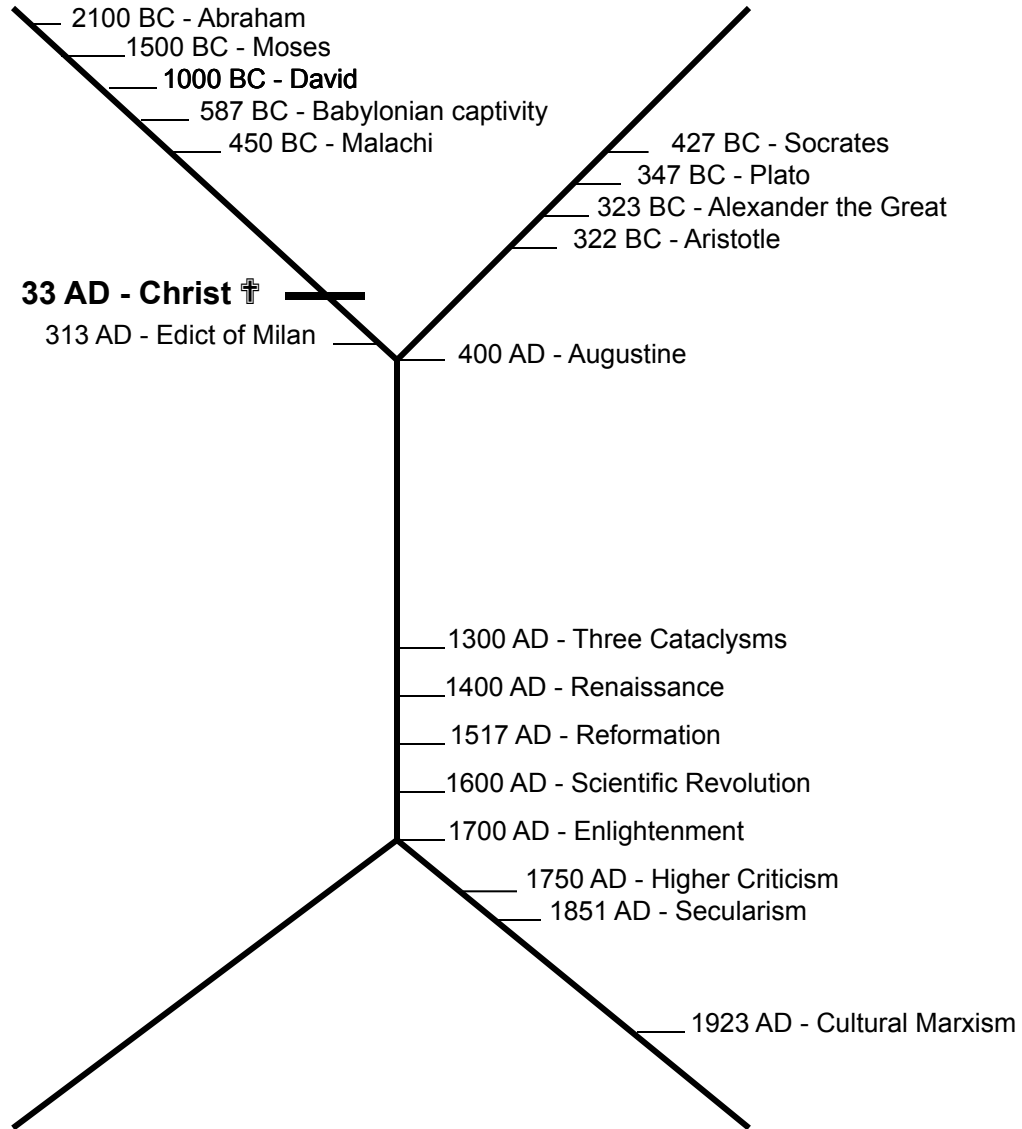

Figure 2: Challenges to the Authority Structure of God

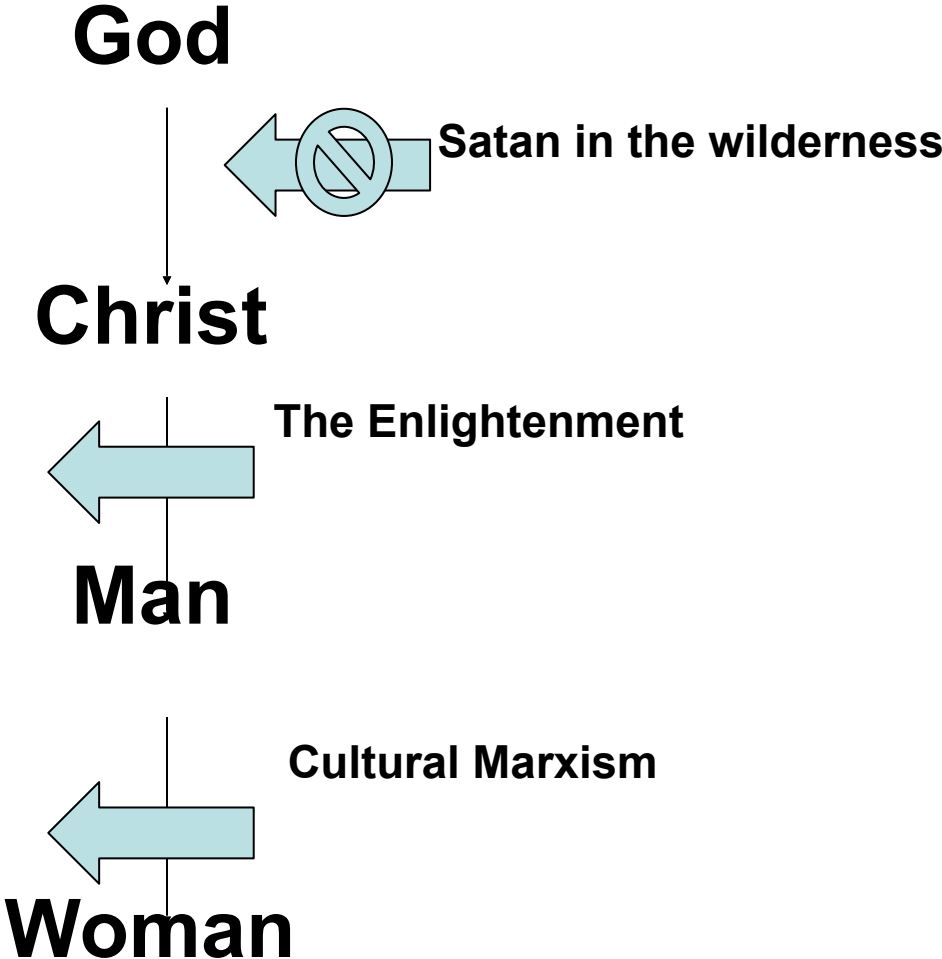

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)
Contentment with respect to material things (I Tim. 6:8, Phil. 4:11-13)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)
Contentment with respect to material things (I Tim. 6:8, Phil. 4:11-13)	Greed and covetousness with respect to material things

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)
Contentment with respect to material things (I Tim. 6:8, Phil. 4:11-13)	Greed and covetousness with respect to material things
Love is the chief virtue and is gained through self-denial

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)
Contentment with respect to material things (I Tim. 6:8, Phil. 4:11-13)	Greed and covetousness with respect to material things
Love is the chief virtue and is gained through self-denial	Self-actualization and tolerance for others who self-actualize is a chief virtue, which is gained by acting on desires and passions

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)
Contentment with respect to material things (I Tim. 6:8, Phil. 4:11-13)	Greed and covetousness with respect to material things
Love is the chief virtue and is gained through self-denial	Self-actualization and tolerance for others who self-actualize is a chief virtue, which is gained by acting on desires and passions
Each of us will endure judgment before Christ at the end of life (2 Cor. 5:10)

Table: Essential Differences Between Christianity and Secularism

Christianity	Secularism
Earthly life is a means to a spiritual end	Earthly life is an end in itself
Life is about spiritual reality underlying experience and the primacy of that reality	Life is about temporal conditions and their betterment
God spoke both the spiritual and natural worlds into existence	Man creates reality through his words (linguistic constructivism)
Our purpose on earth is to conform our souls to spiritual reality	Man conforms temporal reality to his will
Man is a free moral agent who can choose	Man is a victim of the laws of history and social and economic circumstances
Sin is individual, present in all, and is against God (man is the problem)	Sin is social and against classes of people, reflected in unequal opportunity and outcomes (God is the problem)
Christ frees men from sin to be united with Him (goal is freedom)	Mankind can create material equality for all (goal is equity)
Contentment with respect to material things (I Tim. 6:8, Phil. 4:11-13)	Greed and covetousness with respect to material things
Love is the chief virtue and is gained through self-denial	Self-actualization and tolerance for others who self-actualize is a chief virtue, which is gained by acting on desires and passions
Each of us will endure judgment before Christ at the end of life (2 Cor. 5:10)	Believers have no eternal accountability (Church embraces this when it teaches that grace eliminates consequences for temporal behavior)